DANIEL SELL, the smallest man in Adams county, and who was awarded a prize for being the smallest fireman in the State of Pennsylvania, died on last Wednesday morning at the County Home, aged 69 years. He went with the company to the State Conventions and always attracted much attention. He was a vice president of the company while a member of the organization. In 1895 at the Firemen's Convention at Reading he took the prize as the smallest fireman in the State. Adams Co. C. E. Convention.

The ninth annual convention of the Adams County C. E. Union met in St. Paul's Evangelical Lutheran Church, Littlestown, Pa., Thursday, May 2nd, 1912.

The devotional services of the opening session were conducted by Rev. J J. Hill, pastor of St. Paul's Church, Littlestown.

Rev. W. A. Korn delivered the opening address on the subject of "Public Prayer." Rev. Korn emphasized the importance of prayer at the beginning of all services for the Master. His address was a most appropriate and excellent one for the opening of one of the best conventions Adams county has ever held

Rev. Korn was followed by a very practicable and able address on "Interesting Non-Endeavors in C. E. Work," by Rev S. R Ludwig Both speakers in the opening session it seemed aimed above all to be practicable and helpful a spirit that lasted through every session of the convention.

The President appointed the following committees: Nominating Committee, Committee on Resolutions, and Committee on Place of Meeting, and the first session was brought to a close.

At 7.30 p. m. the large auditorium of the church was filled to its utmost capacity with an unusually enthusiastic and appreciative audience. This great audience was wonderfully entertained and enthused by the two powerful addresses on the subject of C. E. Enthusiasm. How to Maintain It," by Rev. F. E. Taylor, and Rev. J. B. Baker.

A special feature of this session was the stirring singing conducted by the well known leader, I. L. Taylor. One of the most pleasing and helpful services rendered during the convention was the playing of Mrs. Smith, the organist. She kept the audience thrilled and spell-bound by her splendid performance at the organ. The united singers, a male chorus of Littlestown, furnished special music at this session and the closing session on Friday evening.

"Early Opportunities" was the subject of the Sunrise Meeting Friday morning, led by Guy McCarney. This was a splendid spiritual session of prayer and praise.

At 9 a m. Friday the business session of the convention was held. President Fred. G Troxell presided at the session and the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Pres., Rev. Low, First Vice President Daniel Hoffman; Second Vice President, Andrew Trimmer; Third Vice President, George Hartman; Fourth Vice President, Preston Hull; Recording Secretary, Bertha Heiges; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Martha Berkheimer; Treasurer, Alma A. Henry; Junior Superintendent, Miss Agnes Ehrhart.

After the business session Roy Derr and Rev. P. T. E. Stocklager, delivered very interesting addresses respectively on "Missions" and "The Social Side of C. E."

The afternoon session consisted of an address on "The Importance o fa Junior Society," by Rev. C F. Floto, and a "School of C. E. Mehods" conducted by Dr. Clarence H Chain, State Secretary of C. E. Dr. Chain is a dentist by profession but devotes much of his time to church work.

The closing session was held on Friday evening. Dr. Chain delivered a most helpful and inspiring address on the subject, "I Reach."

The convention had the pleasure during the evening of listening to two splendid solos, one by Edwin Rice and the other by Dr. Chain.

Rev Watkins offered the closing prayer and pronounced the benediction Thus closed one of the best, most enthusiastic and inspiring conventions ever held in Adams county.

Great College Concert

The officers of the Orchestra, Niemond F. Keller, Manager, Robert B. Fortenbaugh, Treasurer, and J. Dale Diehl, Leader. The success of the concert from the musical point of view is due to Mr. Diehl. He is not only a musical genius but a genius for work and gets inspiring work out of his men and the result was a musical feast declared by everyone who heard it to be the equal of the best entertainments of the kind that ever come here or are heard elsewhere.

The Fiftieth Anniversary of the Battle of Gettysburg Commission held a very important meeting in Philadelphia on Monday. The commission are beginning to realize that the transportation difficulties for a four days celebration by a hundred thousand people are insurmountable The commission invited representatives of the Philadelphia and Reading Railroad, the Western Maryland Railroad, the Pennsylvania Railroad and the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad to attend a conference on Monday. It is probable Capt. Hartman was present and that he made clear his investigations showing how 40.000 could be handled but that two or four times that number would be impossible in four days time.

THE WOMAN'S RELIEF CORPS

AUXILIARY TO THE GRAND ARMY OF THE REPUBLIC.

Will Hold Annual Meeting in Gettysburg During the Month of June.

As the Penna. Department of the Grand Army of the Republic will meet in Gettysburg next month, it may be interesting to many persons to know more about its auxiliary, which meets annually with it.

Its Origin.

When, in response to Lincoln's call in 1861, loyal men volunteered to aid in preserving the Union, bands of loyal women were formed all over the country, to provide as far as possible, for the comfort of the "Boys in Blue." These soldiers' aid societies as they were called were great sources of supply for the Christian and sanitary commissions.

With the close of the war, their apparent need ceased. The Grand Army was organized, and was doing its utmost to aid unfortunate comrades; but, after a decade, the country faced a financial crisis, and sickness, old wounds, lack of work, and bitter disappointments, began to make cruel ravages in the ranks of the veterans. Destitute widows and helpless orphans appealed for help; but the Grand Army was small, and had no sources of replenishment for the steady drain upon its treasury.

Again the loyal women answered: "Here am I!" to the call of the men who saved the nation. Almost simultaneously Massachusetts and Ohio took up the work—the former under the name of "The Woman's Relief Corps," the latter, that of "Post Ladies' Aid Society." This grand movement began in 1878-79 and has grown more formidable in numbers and influence to the present time.

At the 14th annual encampment of the Grand Army at Indianapolis, in 1881, through Chaplain-in-Chief Lovering, of Massachusetts, attention was called to the importance of having an officially organized woman's auxiliary. A committee was appointed and at the annual encampment, in 1883, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted:

Resolved, That we approve of the project of organizing a national Woman's Relief Corps.

Resolved, That such Woman's Relief Corps may use, under such title the words "Auxiliary to the Grand Army of the Republic."

The National.

In 1883, at Denver, Colorado, these resolutions were carried into effect, and the National Woman's Relief Corps was organized with 58 charter members.

The 29th National Convention was held at Rochester, N. Y., last August, and its record of charitable and patriotic work shows that it is, in deed and truth, as well as in name, a Relief Corps; and that its members are banded together for what they can do, not for what they can get; thus emulating the example of Him who came not to be ministered unto, but to minister. They appropriately adopt the good old German motto——"Ich dien."

At Saratoga Springs in 1907, its 25th anniversary was celebrated by a gift of $6,000 to the Relief Fund of the Grand Army; and each year since, a contribution of $1,000 has been made to the same fund. Needy veterans, widows, and orphans are its especial care, and Soldiers' Homes are maintaind in many of the departments. It also lends a helping hand to needy Army Nurses—fifty-five being remembered, in 1911, by a $20.00 Xmas gift; and in several particularly needy cases, from $25.00 to $50.00 was given.

Its work at Andersonville is beyond praise. In 1890 the Georgia Department of the Grand Army of the Republic purchased the grounds known as the Confederate National Prison—72.5 acres, hoping to be able to improve and maintain it, but they were unable to do so, and at the 13th National Encampment at Louisville, Ky., in 1895, it was offered to the Woman's Relief Corps, providing that they would hold and improve it. They gladly accepted it as a sacred trust, purchased 14.5 acres to complete the tract, and have spent thousands of dollars in beautifying it.

On Memorial Day in 1891, they dedicated a beautiful pavilion over the famous "Providence Spring"; and a neat little cottage has been erected for the use of the care-taker of "Andersonville Prison Park." Six States, among them our own grand Commonwealth, have erected monuments to the memory of their sons who suffered and died there; and far above the highest ground in the old "Stockade" floats the Stars and Stripes, visible for miles around.

At Toledo, Ohio, in 1908, the deed of the property was tendered to the United States. In March, 1910, Congress authorized its acceptance, and, after the usual winding and unwinding of "red tape," on Memorial Day, in 1911, at Andersonville, it was formally accepted, and placed under the special care of the War Department. At that time, the woman's Relief Corps completed its work at Andersonville, by the dedication of "A bronze tablet, set in a shaft of highly polished Barre granite, with a surmounting sun-dial in bronze; the gnomon being in the form of an American flag, reflecting its protecting shadow on the dial." It was furnished by McDonnell and Sons of Buffalo, N. Y., and is appropriately inscribed, but at too great length to be repeated here.

During the year ending June 30, 1911, 2,000 Declaration of Independent Charts, and 5,132 flags were placed in schools. The total amount expended since its organization, for relief, patriotic work, and Memorial Day (much of this in the South) is $3,873,008.88. It has had a wonderful growth, and is the largest organized body of charitable and patriotic women in the world—now numbering 164,396 members.

Departments.

There are 38 departments and 2,832 Corps, not including detached Corps in States where there are no Departments. Massachusetts has 15,203 members; Ohio 12,803; Illinois 12,526, and New York 10,787. The Pennsylvania Department is among the smaller ones, reporting only 3,362 members, but it owns and maintains with some help from the State, a fine Home at Brookville, Jefferson county. At the Department Convention next month, a beautiful silk flag will be presented to Brua Chapel, as a recognition of the courtesy of the College authorities in allowing us to occupy it during our sessions. The Department President is Mrs. Louisa Greenwood of Coatsville.

Corps.

A Corps cannot exist without a Post, must have authority from it to organize and must have the same name and number. The eligibility clause reads thus: "Women of good moral character and deportment; who have nor given aid and comfort to the enemies of the Union; who would perpetuate the principles to which the association stands pledged; and who have attained the age of 16 years are eligible to membership in the Woman's Relief Corps."

There is but one Corps in Adams county—Corporal Skelly Corps No. 9, of Gettysburg, instituted in February, 1900. It is small and weak, numerically, but it has proved itself equal to all that can be expected of an average Corps. Very little interest has been manifested in it, even by the members of the Post, without whose approval it could not have been organized.

In a letter recently received from one of the National officers, a Pennsylvanian, she says: "It has always seemed strange to me that so little interest is taken in Corps work by the women of Gettysburg. Of all places in our land, it would seem to me to be the place for an enthusiastic and flourishing Corps. Why is it?" I can only echo—"Why?"

City Point and Army Line R. R.

Prof. J. Howard Wert, in "Half-Minute Talks About Old Papers" in the "Harrisburg Telegraph" tells the following interesting story of the railroad maintained by the Army during the Civil War and ceased to exist at the Civil War and which ceased to exist at the end of the war.

The Civil War, conducted on a scale gigantic, involved immense loss of life and destruction of property. Yet, paradoxical as it may seem, it vivified every department of our national activities. In no direction was this more noticeable than in every branch of newspaper work. The two great rivals in depicting the great struggle pictorially were Harper's Weekly and Frank Leslies' Illustrated Paper. He who has the bound files of one or both of these papers from 1861 to 1865 has a treasure.

The paper I now have before me is Harper's Weekly, March 25, 1865. The article for to-day is based on one illustration on a page of pictures of scenes in the Army of the Potomac then besieging Petersburg. This cut is entitled "Bridge on the Military Railroad from City Point to Hatcher's Run." That cut recalls vividly to the writer the most unique railroad this world has ever seen.

Its entire length, when completed, was somewhat more than 20 miles, but is was a long time in building, for much of it was built a mile or two at a time after bloody battles had won the ground for the Federal Army. As Grant was continually executing his favorite flank movement by extending his left, gangs of workmen were busy on the dearly gained ground ere the smoke of battle had left the air or the dead were buried.

The road traversed the entire length of the Army of the Potomac, connecting the headquarters at City Point on the James River with every corps and division of the long line of militant boys in blue. It was built with scant attention to grading, up hill and down. The best and bravest engineers of the United States were secured for service on this road; and the speed they made, especially on the level between City Point and Meade Station, was something appalling, if you were possessed of nerves.

Although this road carried passengers by the million, no man ever paid a fare. The conductors wore uniforms but they were the uniforms of Uncle Sam, and the only ticket they required was a properly executed pass from some Federal commander. For eight months no twenty miles of railroad in the United States carried as much freight as did this one, but it was all hauled free. It hauled powder and cannon, arms and ammunition, food and clothing for 150,000 men. When Christmas time came on, it hauled great trainloads of boxes from New England, New York, Pennsylvania and the wide West containing Christmas cheer for the soldier boys from faraway homes. It hauled carloads of dead men, whose remains now rest in cemeteries from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and are each Memorial Day, decorated with a flag.

The picture before me is the massive and lofty trestle work bridge built over wide morass not far from Hancock Station. It was from a car on a siding at the end of this bridge that President Lincoln watched the storming of Petersburg, April 2, 1865.

And when Petersburg and Richmond fell, what a change! An army of workmen tore up the rails, and in a single day, "Grant's City Point and Army Line R. R." ceased to exist.

Mission Bells.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

The following letter accompanied a musical manuscript sent by Marie Louka, the distinguished composer, to the Whitney Warner Company:

Lakewood, N. J., Dec. 15, 1911.
Whitney Warner Company,
131 West Forty-first Street,
New York.

Gentlemen—I am sending you with this the last of the five teaching pieces that I had promised to write this year. I have named it "Mission Bells." The theme, and in fact the whole composition, came to me as an inspiration while traveling through California for my health two years ago. I traveled most of the time in stage coaches, of which there are still many left between San Diego and San Francisco. I saw the ruins of many of the old missions, which one hundred years ago were a refuge and a home for the worn traveler, who could stay as long as he wished and pay what he could afford, and when he went away took the blessings of the Monks, those men of God who sacrificed their lives for mankind in a country which was inhabited mostly by the lawless Spaniards and Mexicans. While almost all of these buildings are in a ruined state now I was very much impressed with the bells which in four or five missions still remained. These bells were formerly rung at night to guide lost travelers. One day while making a trip on horseback to the foot of a range of mountains with my companion and guide we lost our way. It was late in the afternoon when we discovered the fact. While pondering what to do we heard the chiming of sweet bells—three in number, we judge from the sound—and following this, to us most welcome sound, we came upon an Ursuline convent, situated in the most beautiful natural park in the foothills of a long range of mountains. As we came up close we could hear the soft tones of an organ and the singing of the nuns. It was vesper time, and I was deeply impressed with the beautiful scene that I forgot the predicament we were in. We reined up our horses and stopped until the chanting was over, and the whole scene made such an impression upon me that I resolved to embody it just as it then impressed me in a musical composition. This I have since done, and I am submitting the manuscript to you under conditions that it be named "Mission Bells" and that a short description of this event in my life be inscribed upon every copy. Kindly send contracts and any other communications to my home in Philadelphia.

Yours very sincerely,
MARIA LOUKA.

Musical critics who have heard "Mission Bells" have pronounced it a masterpiece as a descriptive work. The sound of the three bells as produced on the piano is remarkably perfect. It is not a very difficult composition, and will no doubt take its place among the semi-classic teaching pieces, such as "Monastry Bells," "Cathedral Chimes" and "Das Glockenspiel." The Whitney Warner Company have a splendid catalogue and control all of Marie Louka's latest compositions.

Open Your Windows.

Spring has come but common sense about fresh air has not yet arrived. People still have a foolish dread of draughts.

The average railroad car is stuffy. Its air is stale. It is a splendid place for the traveler to contract colds and other germs. There is every need for fresh air; yet even in this moderate weather one will seldom find more than two or three windows open in a railroad car. The travelers are afraid of draughts. But a draught can only hurt you by chilling you. Unless you are overheated or insufficiently clothed you are not likely to be chilled.

On the other hand, if there is no motion in the air, you are probably breathing the same air again and again. This reduces your vitality and ability to resist germs. As a rule you do not take colds and pneumonia at home or out of doors. You get the germs in crowds and in crowded, unventilated places.

When the air is blowing you can be sure that you are safe from the germs of colds, pnumonia and tuberculosis. So put aside your foolish fear of draughts. There is no excuse for closed windows now. Throw them open in trains, trolley cars and wherever you happen to be.—By Karl de Schweinitz, Executive Secretary, Pennsylvania Society for the Prevention of Tuberculosis.

IT MUST BE TRUE.

Gettysburg Readers Come to that Conclusion.

It is not the telling of a single case in Gettysburg, but scores of citizens testify. Endorsement by people you know bears the stamp of truth. The following is one of the public statements made in this locality about Doan's Kidney Pills:

John J. Tawney, 234 Baltimore St., Gettysburg, Pa., says: "I hold Doan's Kidney Pills in high esteem and I always have a box in the house to use in case of need. I suffered from kidney complaint. My back ached constantly and often in the morning I was so stiff and lame that I could hardly get out of bed. The kidney secretions were too frequent in passage and caused me no end of annoyance. Being advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills, I did so, getting them from the People's Drug Store and I was surprised by their promptness in relieving me. My health improved greatly and I now have no cause for complaint. Two years ago a member of my family publicly recommended Doan's Kidney Pills in my behalf and at this time I can confirm that statement."

TRY THIS

"RICHMOND" Suction Cleaner

IN YOUR OWN HOME 5 DAYS FREE.

We want every woman in America to have the opportunity to try the "RICHMOND" Suction Cleaner in her own home. And to show our unbounded confidence in the machine, we've decided to send it out on 5 days free trial.

Use it as much as you like. Clean your carpets and rugs, your upholstery, curtains, walls, ceilings, mattresses, pillows, etc.

See for yourself how it makes everything as bright and new as the day it was bought. See how it cleans without raising a particle of dust, how it makes after dusting unnecessary. Watch it get the dirt from under heavy furniture, behind radiators and from other inaccessable places.

Try the nine special attachments which we furnish with every machine—the hair-drying tool, the tools for cleaning clothes, book-shelves, etc.

"RICHMOND" Suction Cleaner

Compare this easy, pleasant method of cleaning with the disagreeable backaching drudgery of brooms, mops and dusters.

Put the machine in every test you can think of.

Then at the end of 5 days if you are willing to part with the machine simply notify us and we'll send for it.

On the other hand if you wish to keep the machine you can pay for it on Easy Monthly Payments out of the actual money which the machine saves for you.

A liberal discount will be allowed those who pay cash.

The experience of most purchasers is that the "RICHMOND" Suction Cleaner pays for itself in from twelve to thirty months.

It pays for itself, first, because it does away with the annual or semi-annual tear ups called housecleaning (and housecleaning costs more than you think unless you have figured it out).

It pays for itself, second, because it doubles and trebles the life of floor coverings, hangings, furniture, wall paper, decorations, etc.

The "RICHMOND" Suction Cleaner weighs but 10 pounds. It can easily be carried upstairs, downstairs anywhere without the least fatigue. It is a truly portable cleaner.

A "RICHMOND" is built with a view to long durability and we cover it with the broadest possible guarantee. It is simple in construction. There is nothing to wear out. There are no gears, no diaphragms, no valves. Nothing to jiggle loose. To operate, simply attach to any electric lamp socket. Costs about one cent per hour to operate.

Surely you must see that the "RICHMOND" Suction Cleaner must give perfect service, perfect satisfaction, day after day, month after month, else we could not afford this offer.

But don't take our word for it. Find out for yourself. Try a machine at our risk. If it doesn't make good—if it doesn't more than come up to your expectations, simply tell us to take it away. Could anything be more fair?

Remember it costs you nothing if you decide to keep the machine. All we ask is that $1 00 be deposited with us as evidence of good faith and to keep away triflers. The $1 00 will be refunded in case the machine is returned.

Prices Range from $40.00 to $85.00.

Mail the coupon and get full particulars. Do it now while you're thinking of it.

FOUND GOLD IN CALIFORNIA

Pennsylvania Man Was First to Discover Yellow Metal in Golden Gate State.

"It is not generally known," said a mineralogist, "that the discoverer of gold in California was a Pennsylvanian and at one time a resident of California. This distinguished pioneer lies buried in the soil of this state, almost forgotten. He was Gen John A. Sutter, a Swiss, who emigrated to Philadelphia in 1834 and became a citizen of this commonwealth His grave is in the Mennonite burying grounds at Lititz, Lancaster county, in which village he spent the last years of his life. General Sutter was born in 1803 in Baden, Germany, near the borders of Switzerland. Upon his arrival in this country he spent some time in this city, subsequently removing to the vicinity of Lititz, where in the midst of relatives, he engaged in farming. Possessed of a roving nature, however, it was not long before he yearned to explore the great unknown land beyond the Rockies After many privations he reached California some time in the early '40s and staked a claim. It was in the fall of '48, after a heavy rain, that, attracted by yellowish deposits in a small stream, he made his great discovery of the precious metal. The news of his find spread rapidly, and the following spring the great rush from the east began. General Sutter amassed a considerable fortune through his gold diggings, but lost most of it through unfortunate speculations. He returned to Pennsylvania in 1871 and spent his declining years in retirement, living on the pension of $250 a month voted him by the California legislature. He died June 18, 1880. Two of his pallbearers were Gens. John C. Fremont and Ambrose E. Burnside, who had been his friends in California.—Philadelphia Press.

AVIATORS ARE POORLY PAID

Even Best Flyers Get Small Remuneration for the Dangers They Face.

The popular supposition that aviation is a sort of Klondike where people who have a certain amount of daring can go and snatch up a fortune is decidedly mistaken. People read reports of big prizes won by aviators in contests and take for granted that it all goes to the flyers. That is wrong; with a few exceptions the flyers do not get the prizes they win. They are employed to fly by big concerns who pay them a salary, seldom exceeding $75 per week, the usual arrangement being from $25 to $40 per week salary and $50 per day when they fly at meets. This is true even where the very best American and foreign flyers are concerned, including such celebrities as Brookins, Beachey, Ely and others.

Nor is the lot of the independent flyer any better. To keep up with the flyers of big concerns continuous improvement of their machines—which must, of course, always be of the very best—is necessary. What with the cost of the aeroplane, of running it, keeping it in good condition, salary of mechanic and general expenses, the prizes the aviator gets become rather small by the time the expenses are deducted. The fact that prizes are now given only to winners of contests makes the prospect none too attractive. Aviation does hold prizes for ambitious young men, but very few of the kind imagined by the outside public. In fact, there is a slough of despond awaiting the unwary who venture into aviation with no other intention than to make money quickly.—Metropolitan Magazine.

Ancient and Modern Sailors.

In a group around a motion picture signboard near the Tribune building were two "jackies" from the fleet in the Hudson, who were about to move on when an old man took the arm of one and delivered a short talk which diverted attention from the lithographs and from the venders. "I'm an old sailor," he said. "I was in the service before you were born. I was on a Mississippi gunboat, twice around the Horn on a sailer, down to Good Hope on another from Liverpool and to Australia from 'Frisco. Never on a steamer except the gunboat. We were sailors though," with the emphasis on the "sailors." "You boys are day laborers." "Guess that is right, pop," said one of the men, "but we're the kind they want now," and they linked arms and walked away, leaving the old man to tell how they "couldn't tie a knot" and do many things which came in the sailor's line "in the old times."—New York Tribune.

Marriage at Fifty.

An interesting and unusual estimate of the proper age for matrimony is that advanced by Mrs. Vivian, head and founder of the National Society of the Daughters of California. The happiest and most successful marriages, she says, are those between the man of 50 and the woman of 35 At that age of discretion, she claims, the male has become more mellow and tolerant as well as more solvent. On the other hand she intimates that a girl of 20 is much harder to get along with than to get along without, and that there ought to be laws prohibiting people marrying before they are 30 years old —Success Magazine.

No Doubt About That.

"Come along downtown with me Mabel."

"But I have no money with me."

"What's the difference? Two car shop as cheaply as one."

Mark Twain on Roosevelt.

Among Mark Twain's papers after his death was found the following opinion of Roosevelt written two days after the inauguration of Taft in 1909.

"Astronomers assure us," wrote Mark Twain, "that the attraction of gravitation on the surface of the sun is 28 times as powerful as is the force at the earth's surface, and that the object which weighs 217 pounds elsewhere would weigh 6000 pounds there. For several years this country has lain smothering under a burden like that, the incubus representing in the person of President Roosevelt the difference between 217 and 6000. Thanks be, we got rid of this disastrous burden day before yesterday, at last.

"Forever? Probably not; probaly for only a brief breathing spell, wherein, under Mr. Taft, we may hope to get back some of our health in four years. We may expect to have Mr. Roosevelt sitting on us again with his 28 times the weights of any other Presidential burden that a hostile providence could impose upon us for our sins.

"Our people have adored this showy charlatan as perhaps no imposter of his breed has been adored since the Golden Calf; so it is to be expected that the nation will want him back again after he is done hunting other wild animals heroically in Africa, with the safeguards and advertising equipment of a park of artillery and a brass band."

Gov. Tener on Good Roads.

Governor Tener, at a recent banquet of the Pennsylvania Motor Federation spoke on subject of good roads in Pennsylvania as follows:

"The question that now confronts us," said the Governor, "is shall we be content to apply from year to year such amount of the ordinary revenues of the State as can be spared for the purpose, and build and maintain a few miles at best annually, with only a future generation to enjoy them, or shall we provide, as has been proposed, such an amount as will enable the State Highway Department to prosecute the work to the best advantage and to the end that you of to-day as well as those who come after, may enjoy improved roads reaching into every county and into the remotest corners of our State.

"When the proposition to provide sufficient money to carry on this great work comes before the people and our Legislature, this organization can, and I am certain will, prove a most potent force in its consumation. When it is understood by all our people that such a debt when created will not add a single penny of tax other than is now levied for State purposes there will be no dissenting voices or votes."

On Second Thought, Gambler Decided He Would Not Put the Bishop Out.

The bishop of a southern diocese was once making a missionary journey through Arkansas and the Indian territory, and on his arrival at Natchez he said to the landlord of a hotel, "I have been traveling for a week, day and night, in a mail wagon, and I want a comfortable room."

"Sorry," said the landlord, "but I don't believe there's a vacant room in Natchez; there's a horseface, a Methodist conference and a political convention in the city, and every house is full up. The only thing I can give you is a shake-down." Then observing the bishop's tired face, he added, "The best room in my house is rented to a noted gambler who usually remains out all night and seldom gets in before breakfast. If you will take the risk, you shall have his room; but if he should come in there'll be a row, I'll promise you that."

The bishop decided to take the risk. About four o'clock in the morning the gambler returned and promptly shook the bishop by the arm.

"Get out of here, or I'll put you out!" he shouted.

The bishop, the gentlest of men, raised himself on one elbow, so that it brought the muscles of his arm into full relief.

"My friend," he began quietly, "before you put me out, will you have the kindness to feel of my arm?"

The gambler put his hand on the bishop's arm.

"Stranger," he then said respectfully, "you can stay."—Youth's Companion.

WITH A LITTLE DIPLOMACY

Husband Put an End to Plans That Meant the Breaking Up of His Home.

The romance of a little affair of the heart was completely annihilated by an old-fashioned husband. Some good natured friend, who honed to throw him into spasms by the startling information, told him that his wife had made preparations to elope, and that she only awaited the first of the month, when he who had promised to be the partner of her flight would arrive with his month's pay, which was needed for traveling expenses. Did that husband rave and tear his hair, go to his wife and on bended knees beg her to remain? No.

Entering her presence, check book in hand, with a lighted cigar in his mouth, he thus calmly addressed her, between the whiffs of smoke: "Emma, I have learned that you have made up your mind to travel, and that you need a little money for railroad fares, etc. Your natural modesty prevented your mentioning the matter to me; or perhaps you wanted to surprise me. Name the amount you require, and I will fill out a check for the sum, and thank the man who has volunteered to act as your escort."

Seeing that he was so willing to get rid of her, she wouldn't gratify him. She is still in the house of her lord and master, a penitent woman.—New York Weekly.

Treatment of Pavements.

They took a little gravel
And they took a little tar
With various ingredients
Imported from afar;
They hammered it, and rolled it,
They said they had a pavement
That would last for many a day,
But they came back with picks and smote it,
To lay a water main;
And then they called the workmen
To put it back again.
To run a railway cable
They took it up some more;
And they put it back again
Just where it was before.
They took it up for conduit,
To run the telephone;
And then they put it back again
As hard as any stone
They took it up for wires,
To feed the 'lectric light,
And then they put it back again,
Which was no more than right.
Oh, the pavement's full of furrows,
There are patches everywhere;
You'd like to ride upon it,
But it's seldom that you dare
It's a very handsome pavement,
A credit to the town;
They're always diggin' of it up
Or puttin' of it down.

Farming Made Easy.

Six years ago a farmer put in a small electric plant and the following record of what he made it do is vouched for by "Farm and Fireside." In the first place every building, including the pig sty, is lighted by electricity.

A small motor drives a circular saw which cuts expeditiously what little firewood is used on the farm. The same motor turns a lathe, drill and other machinery in the farm machine shop near by.

Another motor drives a vacuum and the sweeping at the house is done in the most modern manner with vacuum cleaners. No dust. All the sting of drudgery is removed.

A pipe from this same vacuum line is run to the cow stables, where two vacuum milking machines milk twenty-five cows each day.

Another small motor runs the milk separator and churn and in the summer an ice cream freezer.

Even the grindstone is turned by electric power, which relieves the small boy from one of his most disliked tasks and gives him more time to attend to the needs of the fishes in the always nearby trout brook.

Five electric heaters in the house keep the temperature at seventy-five degrees, if desired, when it is zero outside.

In the kitchen all the cooking for a family of five to ten is done upon an electric range. A tiny motor runs the family washing machine and wringer and drives the sewing machine.

The water system for house and barn is supplied from an electric motor driven pump.

These farm electric plants can be installed at a cost of $400 to $1,800, the cost varying according to the work to be accomplished and the amount of installation work done by the farmer himself.

Question of the Third Term.

"There is no cleaner, higher class, publication of its kind, in this country than the "Youth's Companion." It not only publishes the cleanest and most moral of literature, but its editorials and comments are gems of the first rank. In a recent issue it considers, editorially, the "third term" question, and in the course of the article says:

"Behind this belief that two terms, or eight years, should be the limit has always been the fear that a dictatorship, or monarchy, might be established. Those who have this fear point out that the President of the United States has more power than most monarchs—a power that might easily be used by a strong and ambitious man to greatly strengthen his hold upon the office.

"Wherever the people come to think that there is only one man among the millions of our population who can save the country, or can carry out the measures that they want carried out, and feel that he must have a third or perhaps fourth term, they are perilously near the state of mind that gives to dictators their opportunity and their excuse. It is evident that if a man were to succeed to power as a result of the assumption, by the people at large, that he is essential to their salvation, he would assume office with far greater authority than that which the American people have hitherto given to their Presidents."

Code Requires Playgrounds.

The State Board of Education has decided that hereafter it will approve no plans for school houses unless proper provision is made for playgrounds. This seems to be a move in the right direction. The physical activity of the child must be provided for in order to secure an all round education. If children are given an opportunity to express themselves in play, they will not resort to practices which interfere with the good order of the community in which they live. No educational movement in the last ten years has attracted as much attention as the movement for the welfare of the child as it can be best conserved in giving it opportunities for proper physical expression.

POLITICAL TRICK EXPOSED.

Two recent editorials in issues of the York Gazette of last week are of the greatest interest to every Democratic voter in Adams county They have to do with an attempt in York county to defeat the will of the Democratic people of this Congressional District overwhelmingly in favor of reorganization and opposed to a continuation or a domination in any form of Guffey Donnelly, Ryan and Hall One of the editorials was entitled "The Real Issue" and was as follows:

For nearly two years the rank and file of the Democratic party in Pennsylvania led by George W Guthrie and A Mitchell Palmer have waged a hard and persistent fight to rid the party of the control of Guffey, Donnelly Ryan, Hall, and other bosses, big and little, who for years used the party for the furtherance of their own selfish ends, the promotion of the big interests in disregard of the rights and wishes of the masses, and incidentally helping to maintain the Republican bosses in power by playing hand in glove with them.

It now remains for the Democratic party to finish its work when its convention will be held next week. Manifestly the fight of the reorganization Democrats is not over, for Guffey and his followers are preparing to carry the fight into the convention, but under a disguise

Guffey and his lieutenants realize that none of them could be elected for a doorkeeper at the convention Therefore they have selected Judge James Gay Gordon as a "compromise" candidate for national committeeman from this state, and are urging some of the unwary delegates to support him under the pretense that he will be acceptable to those who wish to rid the party of the bosses. Nothing could be further from the truth than this claim. Judge Gordon is not acceptable to those who have been waging the fight for clean and decent politics in the state, but he is acceptable to and supported by Guffey and his crowd.

They hope to be the power behind the throne, through Gordon, if a Democratic president should be elected. If there is anything the Democrats of this state are particularly opposed to at this time, it is to have Guffey and his gang in a position where they can put the next president under obligations to them. With Judge Gordon in the position of national committeeman, under obligations to Guffey for his selection, the whole fight for reorganization would be lost.

This fight attracted comparatively little attention in York county because there was no contest of any consequence over the proposition. Messrs. Myers, Strine, Allison, Barton, Mitzel, Kessler, Freed and Moul had openly declared themselves for reorganization, and solicited votes on this platform. After the primaries it was generally recognized that with one exception the delegation from York county would support Mr. Guthrie for state chairman and Congressman Palmer for national committeeman.

Last Friday, in response to a call, all these delegates excepting Freed and Allison, who are entirely blameless in this matter, met at the office of Thomas E. Heller, in York, where they were met by Mr. Heller and Lemon Love, who with plausible arguments convinced them that the right thing for them to do would be to vote as a unit in the convention next week and support Judge Gordon for national committeeman.

Those who are familiar with the history of the local Democracy will know that Lemon Love and Thomas E. Heller have for years been the local lieutenants of Colonel Guffey and his crowd, and that again and again, by methods that are distasteful to those who regard decency and fair play in politics, they led the local Democracy into positions that were to the discredit of the party. They are the men who cajoled, wheedled and persuaded Messrs. Fake, Kain and Shutt to support Marshall for speaker, and thus continued the power of Quay at a time when otherwise his political career would have been doomed Messrs. Fake, Kain and Shutt undoubtedly acted honestly and with good intentions in the matter, but they were basely misled and deceived by these two wily politicians who were willing to advance their own interests, though it was to the disgrace of the party. Messrs. Fake, Kain and Shutt suffered the infamy of their act, and Love and Heller and some of their other friends reaped the reward for their dirty trick.

The same results will follow if our local delegates allow themselves to be guided by Love and Heller into the ranks of Judge Gordon. They will suffer the fierce condemnation of the rank and file of the local Democracy and will be pointed to as men who betrayed the wishes of the people who placed confidence in them and elected them, while Love and Heller will laugh in their sleeves at the "trick they put over" on the people, while they enjoy whatever advantage may flow from their defeat of the will of the public.

It is to be hoped, not only for the good name and respect of the York county delegates, but also for the welfare of the Democratic party and the community, that these delegates will see the trap which has been laid for them, and that they will go to the sate convention and do what they know the people want them to do instead of following the advice of the local lieutenants of the state bosses.

The second editorial after reviewing the situation in York county had the following to say about Adams:

Just a word in this connection in regard to Adams county. There is a nasty report of perfidity from that county which we must also class as unbelievable until it is proven. A very young man closely identified with the Guffey interests in this city is reported to have boasted recently that the Guffey people "put one over" on the reorganizers in Adams county According to his alleged words the delegates from that county were "crooked" from the first, and their claim of being favorable to real reorganization was a subterfuge. It is also reported that these delegates were present and acquiesced in the alleged agreement made with the Guffey people in York last Friday to "go along" with the disorganizers.

One day last winter a delegation of York county Democrats interested in reorganization went to Gettysburg. There these men met several of the Adams county leaders to inquire of them concerning the situation in that county and the attitude of the candidates in that county for national and state delegates. The conference was held in the office of Attorney J. L. Butt, and in addition to him there were present County Chairman Miley Miller candidate for National Delegate Harry Riddlemoser, Editor Arch McClean, of the Compiler, and several others In answer to questions put squarely to them these gentlemen stated emphatically that they and the state delegate candidates were uncompromisingly for reorganization and against the Guffey crowd It was stated that Guffey interests had tried to get a foothold in that county but had failed entirely. The statement was made that the anti Guffey feeling in Adams county was so strong that no matter how he might feel to the contrary, no candidate could do anything but favor that kind of reorganization if he hoped to get any vote at all, and it was repeated that the candidates for state delegates not only were running on such a reorganization platform, but that they sincerely believed in it

We do not believe that these gentlemen were uttering falsehoods in these statements We do not believe that the Adams county delegates are going to betray their constituents. We do believe that the boast of their being "crooked" from the first is a misrepresentation, and we feel that it should be resented by those against whom the charge is said to have been made. They, like their York county brethren, however, have been placed in a bad light and it is up to them to clear their good names of the serious accusations made. Adams county has been depended upon all along to make good on the professions of loyalty to real reorganization, and failure to do so will place the delegates and the leaders of the party in a position where the rank and file of the Democrats in that county can never trust them again.

All of this goes to show what desperate chances the Guffey disorganizers are taking to nullify the overwhelming expression of the reorganization sentiment in the state. It proves that there can be no end to the party warfare until this evil influence is entirely removed from state politics. And it proves that state delegates cannot be too careful of the company they keep if they do not want to "get in bad" with their constitutents.

As far as known to the COMPILER we could not name an individual in Adams county who in the open stands for Guffey, Donnelly, Ryan and Hall. Hundreds have been heard to express themselves for reorganization, McCormick, Guthrie, Palmer and Wilson. There is but one course for the Adams county delegates to follow to be true and faithful to their constituency and that is to support reorganization and all the candidates of reorganization in the state convention this week.

W. F. Gilliland and Grover Myers, the Adams county delegates were invited to attend meeting in York, referred to in the "York Gazette" editorials. Mr. Myers was not present. Mr. Gilliland attended and says when the name of Judge Gordon was mentioned he said that if Judge Gordon represented the Guffey end it would never do, that he could only support Gordon, provided he was acceptable to the reorganization, declaring that his county stood for reorganization. After leaving the meeting he soon discovered the deception attempted upon the delegates and then wrote the secretary of the meeting that he could not support Judge Gordon in any way and would vote for Palmer for National Committeeman.

Reformed Missionary Meeting.

The spring meeting of the Woman's Missionary Society of Gettysburg Classis was held in Zwingli Reformed Church, East Berlin, Thursday, May 2nd.

The president of the society being unable to attend, the vice president Mrs. S. P. Mauger, of Hanover, presided. The devotional services were conducted by Rev. M. J. Roth, of East Berlin.

The roll call of the various congregations indicated representatives present from ten churches. The reports as presented showed a growing interest in missions in the churches of classis.

Miss Cogan, the field worker of the General Synod, has promised to visit the various congregations during the summer, with a view of organizing woman's missionary societies in all the churches.

The election of officers resulted as follows:

President, Mrs. F. S. Lindaman.
Vice President, Mrs. S. P. Mauger.
Recording Secretary, Miss Carrie Bixler.
Corresponding Secretary, Miss Marion Sheets.
Treasurer, Mrs. W. L. Glatfelter.

Abbottstown was chosen for the next meeting to be held November 14th.

In the evening at 7.30, a meeting was held in the interest of Foreign Missions. The address was given by Dr. Albert Beam of Philadelphia, assistant secretary of Foreign Missions His subject was "Missionary Work in China" with special reference to medical work.

Dr. Beam is a returned missionary and gave the audience a fine lecture which was well received, by the large audience present.

Celebrate Sixtieth Anniversary.

Mr. and Mrs. D. H. Markley celebrated their sixtieth wedding anniversary last week, many of their friends calling to extend congratulations over the long period of happy married life Mrs. Markley was the eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Houck of Centre Mills, where the wedding ceremony was performed by the Rev. John Ulrich. The ushers were the late Judge Beales of York Springs, and Calvin Cover of McKnightstown, also deceased The bridesmaids were Mrs. Isaac Riddlemoser, now dead; and Mrs. John Zinn of Gettysburg. Mr. and Mrs Markley are a remarkable couple. The former has been a justice of the peace for twenty-eight years and is widely known throughout the county. He had been in ill health several weeks and this prevented preparation for a more elaborate anniversary celebration. He has now recovered, much to the delight of his many friends. He is eighty-four years old while Mrs. Markley is eighty years of age. She is a remarkably young looking woman and has very few grey hairs. Mr. Markley's eyesight is one of his proudest boasts. He has never found it necessary to wear glasses and delights to read newspapers and other publications. The children living were at the celebration: Dr. E. H. Markley of Gettysburg, Mrs. E. C. Stock of Baltimore, Md., Mrs. C. W. Gardner of York Springs, and Miss Jennie at home.

Methodist Conference.

Members of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Gettysburg and neighboring towns are looking forward with more than ordinary interest to the meeting of the General Conference of that denomination, which is now about to convene in Minneapolis, Minn. Much important business affecting Methodists all over the world will be transacted, but the principal topic will be the election of a number of bishops to succeed several who will be retired on account of old age and other disabilities. Gettysburg people are particularly interested in this elevation, as the name of the Rev. Dr. Horace Lincoln Jacobs, a graduate of Gettysburg College and at one time pastor of the Methodist church, Hanover and New Oxford churches, and now pastor of the First M. E. Church, Altoona, is among those mentioned for the episcopacy.

Other clergymen, well known to the members of the Central Pennsylvania Conference, similarly mentioned are the Rev. Dr. Homer C. Stuntz, secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions; the Rev. Dr. David G. Downey, secretary of the Board of Sunday Schools; the Rev. Dr. F. J. McConnell, president of De Pauw University; the Rev. Dr. Andrew Gillies, pastor of one of the leading churches in Minneapolis; the Rev. Dr. Charles L. Mead, pastor of the First M. E. Church, Baltimore.

The delegation from the Central Pennsylvania Conference, of which Gettysburg is a part, will be composed of the following delegates:

Ministerial—Rev. Dr. Horace Lincoln Jacobs, Rev. Emory M. Stevens, Rev. Dr. B. C. Conner, Rev. W. P. Eveland, Rev. Joseph T. Anderson and Rev. B. H. Hart.

Lay—Harry E. Buckingham, York; Hon. H. T. Ames, Williamsport; Hon. Sterling W. Wilson, Berwick; R. A. Zeastmyer, Tyrone; Hon. Thomas H. Murray, Clearfield and Harry Hutchison, Altoona.

Miss Barton was born at Oxford, Mass., in 1821, and died at Glen Echo, Md., on April 12, 1912. Paint or Not.

Is a horse worth more or less after feed?

Hay and oats are high today; shall I wait today and feed him tomorrow?

That's how men do about painting their houses and barns and fences. Paint has been high for several years; and so they have waited. Paint is high yet; they are still waiting; thousands of 'em are waiting for paint to fall.

Their property drops a trifle a year and the next job of paint creeps-up creeps-up creeps-up; it'll take more paint by a gallon a year; they don't save a cent, and the property goes-on suffering.

SOME IDEAS ON HYPNOTISM

Results Achieved by Touching the Bumps on the Head of a Prepared Subject.

"There is one curious phenomenon in hypnotism which I have never been able to explain satisfactorily and which seems to be ignored by the modern hypnotist," says a writer in the Metropolitan. "It was first studied by Braid. It is called phreno-magnetism and has been advanced by phrenologists in proof of the correctness of their localization of the mental faculties on the head.

"As far as I know it has never received serious consideration from scientists, perhaps because based on two theories that modern science has not yet accepted: first, that there is such a thing as animal magnetism and, secondly, that the phrenologists have correctly located the faculties on the human head.

"However this may be, phreno-magnetism is a phenomenon which can be tested readily by anyone interested. The technique of phreno-magnetism is this: When the subject is in the hypnotic sleep the operator, standing behind him, places the tips of his fingers upon the subject's head and waits. Soon the subject will begin to act or sing or speak. Anyone acquainted with the phrenological system of localization will recognize at once that the actions or words of the subject correspond to the organ on the head which has been touched by the operator.

"Thus if you touch combativeness the subject is very apt to square off and strike some one or speak of war or a drum. If you touch veneration he is very apt to lift his eyes and pray. I have heard a very eloquent sermon thus inspired in a subject who was gifted with a ready tongue.

"Touch the organ of color and he will speak of beautiful colors. Touch tune and he will sing or whistle. Touch caution and his face will express vivid fear. I remember that one subject startled me by shouting 'Look out!' and making a leap that he could scarcely have equaled in his waking state. When I touched the faculty of caution he thought he saw a snake."

The Long Bow.

James A. Patten, the millionaire cotton speculator, was talking in a Chicago club about his recent trip to England.

"The English," Mr. Patten said, "take a great interest in self-made men. Every English reporter who interviewed me asked for a sketch of my life, and in each of their articles they dwelt on my humble beginning."

"Well, you weren't ashamed of it, were you?" one of his listeners asked.

"Neither ashamed nor unduly proud of it," Mr. Patten answered. "Some men who have worked their way up from a very poor beginning delight in telling of the hardships of their youth. Often, though, I am afraid they exaggerate, as a friend of mine once did in preaching to a young and rather extravagant clerk.

"'To amount to anything in the long run,' said my friend, 'economy and a sense of order are absolutely necessary. Why, when I was your age, young man, I possessed but one brush for my clothes, my teeth and my shoes.'"

Odd Job for Carpenters.

"What do you think of this for a specialty?" said a man who knows the ins and outs of Long Acre square. "There are carpenter shops in this neighborhood where the chief source of income is boxing chorus girls' hats. It's become pretty much of an industry since the hats grew so large that they couldn't be tucked into trunks. The girls when they were about to start on the road used to drift into express offices with bandboxes under their arms and ask to have them shipped just as they were. But the express companies can't accept packages so flimsily hung together. The agent would direct the girl to a nearby carpenter shop to have the box crated and that's how the business grew. Oh, the carpenters get about 50 cents a job and in the course of a week those half-dollars make quite a neat pile."—New York Sun.

Flour From Beets.

A Belgian farmer announced some time ago that he had invented a process by which beets could be ground into flour, but there is nothing to show up to this time that he has been able to put it into practical application. He said that the beet flour made excellent feed for horses and cattle and that it had also proved highly successful for making fine pastry.

According to one report it was said that large beet growers not only in Belgium, but in certain districts of Germany, were preparing to open mills for the grinding of beet into flour. So far as can be learned the process is a well-guarded secret.

Kelly Has Reached London.

For 3 hours and 59 minutes and 45 seconds Prof. L. L. Dee had been lecturing upon the burning questions affecting political economy.

"And now," he concluded, glancing at his chronometer, "I should just like one of the students to state concisely what he considers to be the greatest question at present occupying the minds of men in this country."

From a far corner of the auditorium, cutting the proverbial hush like the proverbial knife, came the response, clear and concise:

"Has any one here seen Kelly?"—Answers.

The Demons of the Swamp

are mosquitos. As they sting they put deadly malaria germs in the blood. Then follow the icy chills and the fires of fever. The appetite flies and the strength fails; also malaria often paves the way for deadly typhoid. But Electric Bitters kill and cast out the malaria germs from the blood; give you a fine appetite and renew your strength. "After long suffering," wrote Wm. Fretwell, of Lucama, N. C., "three bottles drove all the malaria from my system, and I've had good health ever since." Best for all stomach, liver and kidney ills. 50 cts. at People's Drug Store.

Feist Must Serve Sentence.

Jacob G. Feist, the Harrisburg broker, who was recently convicted by the Dauphin county Court of an attack upon fourteen year old Margaret Douglas, of Mechanicsburg, on a lonely road near Steelton, and sentenced to a term of not less than two years or more than five in the penitentiary, was turned down by the Superior Court at Pittsburg last week. The record of Court below was affirmed. Feist had been refused his freedom pending the appeal and is now in the penitentiary.

REPORT OF GRAND JURY

To the Honorable Court:

We the Grand Jury, respectfully and unanimously report that we have passed on 18 indictments and found them all true bills. That we visited the jail and find that owing to the easy means of, and frequent escapes from, the jail yard, the prisoners are not allowed the use or freedom of the jail yard. That they are confined within the cells and corridor, that the rear door being locked from the outside is a menace to the safety of the prisoners in case of fire. That the sewerage is in a very bad condition, being unsanitary, and that the Jury would recommend that there be a better sewer system installed, that the dwelling part of the jail is in good condition. That we visited the Almshouse in all its departments, and find everything in excellent condition, being well kept cleanly and healthy, being a credit to the steward and keepers.

MISS SANTA CLAUS

By Geraldine May Hall

"And we'll have a Santa Claus, children, said Miss Holmes, as a fitting finish to her Christmas promises to Little Turtle school.

"He never comes this way, teacher," piped up Batty Briggs, the youngest hope of the Shaky O. outfit. "We're too far from the main line, Pop says, and travel's bad in winter time."

"Well, he'll come this year, Batty." Paula's gray eyes snapped with something more than resolution. She looked down at the meager school, only nine children culled from far scattered ranches in the Little Turtle valley. Some of them rode miles on ponies to reach the log house, some of them had to ford the river three miles away, and still, day after day, through the long golden fall, and early winter with its stinging frost and wild winds, the faithful nine had arrived, right side up, so to speak, at the schoolhouse with a composite smile for "teacher."

There had never been a Christmas celebration at the Little Turtle school. Indeed, there had been precious little school there except at fitful intervals when a new teacher would appear and try to wrestle with the problems of the position.

Paula Holmes from Omaha had held out better than any of the others. She was little and gray eyed and "set in her ways," as old Pop Briggs said. She boarded at the Shaky O., so Pop had plenty of opportunity to notice those ways. So had other members of the Briggs family, especially the eldest. And after nearly four months of courting, Don Briggs had stumbled into the holidays without a ray of hope or good cheer so far as Paula was concerned. She would not speak to him. He could not ride to school with her. The notes that Batty surreptitiously left on her desk were burned unread where Batty might see their fate, and bear the news home to the sender.

The quarrel had risen out of the Christmas celebration for the children. Paula said she would give one, and invite everybody in the valley.

"You won't get me there if the Crossbens come," Don had said flatly, with all the arrogance of twenty-two. "I don't run with any sheep steerers. Checkers Crossben drove his old lot of stonebacks up over our range last summer, and left it bare as Moses' curse of grasshoppers. I got one good shot at him—"

"You what, Don Briggs?" gasped Paula, horrified.

"Got a good shot at him, and left a hole in his hat, too. Caught him up around our water hole, and I'll bet he had something hot to dope it up with, too."

"Well," said "Teacher," decidedly, "I'm glad I found out what sort of a person you are in time, Mr. Briggs."

"In time for what?" Don laughed down at her, his blue eyes dancing with fun at having caught her. "You know you like me, Paula. Anyhow, you said you did—once."

"Never mind that, now." Paula pushed back her curls that would come straying down in a way unsuited to a staid schoolma'am. "I want to understand this situation clearly, Mr. Briggs. You will not come to be Santa Claus if I invite the Crossbens?"

"No, ma'am," Don replied, firmly "And you'll find you can't have a celebration either, because half the valley won't speak to the other half now over the trouble with the sheep and cattle using the same water holes and range. If you get us all up there, there'll be a shooting up time. Pop will start it with old Sam Crossbens, and I'll finish it up with Checkers."

"You needn't speak to me again, Mr. Briggs," said Paula, coldly. "I don't like to associate with such persons as you."

"I'm glad I got well acquainted with you first," smiled Don again. "Oh, we've met, and we've loved, and we've parted, all on account of Checkers."

"I think you're—"

"Don't say it, Paula, dear. This will blow over."

But Paula had walked away without answering, and had kept her word. She would not speak to Don again, and she flatly would hold the Christmas celebration and invite all the valley ranchers, whether cattle or sheep.

But she had her warning from the children themselves. The mothers might come, and some of the big sisters, and old men, but the two factions had decided on a raid. Each believed the other would go to the schoolhouse, and each intended to break up the party, and chase the other faction into cover.

Paula heard the plans with close mouth and eyes that showed no fear.

"Don't you care what the boys say, children. You come here Christmas eve, and we'll have a tree, and presents, and a Santa Claus.

Christmas eve the teams began to arrive early. All day Paula had worked by herself over the tree, after she had coaxed Pop to cut the big evergreen, and drag it up and set it in place for her. She had sent down home for decorations, and little gifts for the children, and it did look cheery and pretty when she had finished. Mrs. Crossbens had sent Checkers up with a sledge loaded with long strips of evergreen, and some stars and wreaths she had fashioned out of it. And naturally Checkers had remained some time to help fasten [illegible] Briggs drove up with the "refreshments," as he called them, he found his place taken, and a welcome as chilly as the frozen milk in the tin can.

"Who's going to be Santa Claus?" asked Checkers, casually. "Heard there was going to be one."

"There is," answered Paul, firmly.

"Bet it's old Pop Briggs, on account of his whiskers."

"It is not." Paula's chin tilted a bit higher. "Thank you so much, Mr. Crossben, for helping me, and I'm sorry you can't come to-night, and help give the children a happy time."

"Maybe we'll come," said Checkers, doubtfully, scratching his head. "Is Don Briggs going to be Santa Claus?"

"He is not," said Paula, coldly. "Goodby."

Yet both checkers and Don left the little log house with the firm conviction that the other was favored by the teacher, and was to appear as Santa Claus as a mark of honor.

Paula's cheeks were very pink that night when she faced her assembly, and noted how splendidly the whole valley had turned out to support her celebration. Only the younger crowd was absent, the boys from seventeen to twenty-five.

"And now, children," said Paula, finally, "I think it is time for Santa Claus, and I really must meet him out in the entry, and tell him your names, you know. I'm going to ask Mrs. Briggs if she won't take my place and introduce him when the dear old saint comes in, and I'll hold the reindeer."

It sounded wonderfully plausible. The little ranch children stared and held their breaths, and wriggled about excitedly, as the door closed after the teacher. Then came the sound of sleigh bells that jingled merrily, and stopped with a flourish at the outer door. Then there was silence, with Mrs. Briggs beaming on them from the teacher's desk. And all at once a scream.

"My land, what's that now?" gasped Mrs. Briggs.

There came another and another, muffled now, and the stamping of horses' hoofs on the snow outside, of many hoofs.

Mrs. Briggs ran to the door and flung it open. There were the rival factions from the Shaky O. and the Crossben, and they fought for possession of Santa Claus, a short, stocky figure wrapped from toes to ears in Mrs. Briggs' coat, with a fur cap on, and a Santa Claus mask, resplendent in rosy cheeks, long curly white beard, and smiling lips.

"Boys, what on earth are you doing?" she cried. "That's teacher!"

It was a very white-faced, indignant little teacher that emerged from the folds of the raccoon coat when Don carried her into the schoolroom bodily, and set her down on the platform.

"It's Miss Santa Claus," he said. "Boys, let's give her three cheers, and swear never to do it again, if she'll let us stay, and give us some candy, too."

"I'll let you stay if you'll every one shake hands, and promise not to fight any more," retorted Paula, with flashing eyes. "It's a shame the way the valley is upset with you all. And here you almost spoiled our fun tonight kidnaping me."

"We thought you were Don," said Checkers, sadly.

"We thought you were Checkers," grinned back Don. "I'll shake hands if Checkers will."

There, before the teacher's desk, they shook hands, and after them all the rival members of the two factions shook hands, and good will and peace reigned at Little Turtle Creek for the first time in years. Just for a minute out in the snowy, dark entry Don stopped Paula as she waved good night to the crowd. The hood of the coat had fallen back, her cap was off, and she looked like a little Esquimaux. Some way, his arms went around her just naturally, and their lips met.

"Can I see you home, teacher?" yelled Don, jubilantly, and Checkers fled.

Betrayed by "Aside."

The man and his wife did not realize that the hotel manager heard what she whispered when they had been shown rooms as requested yesterday morning, and the husband had objected on account of the price. The manager gave no sign that he had heard

They wanted to look at a large room with bath, and the manager personally showed them such in the front of the hotel.

"How much?" inquired the head of the family. He was told "Six dollars."

"That's too much," he said "I didn't want to pay over $3."

His wife tugged at his arm, and said, in what she thought was an "inside," "Let's go to the boarding house where we stopped the last time."

Her husband turned to the manager, and his tone was different.

"I think that room is too small. We couldn't turn around it it. We've got to have a great big room, and I guess we'll have to look in at some of the other hotels."

"I think we may have some larger rooms vacant after 12 o'clock," suggested the manager, grinning up his sleeve; but the man said they were in a hurry and could not wait.

Anxious to Please.

At breakfast in one of the Chicago hotels an exceedingly fidgety and irritable person within two minutes of giving his order began to squirm and demand when he was going to get his food.

"Waiter," he demanded for about the fourth time, "where's my chop?"

"It's on the grill, sir," the waiter responded. "Will you have it now, or wait until it's done?"

WAS NOT OLD LADY'S SON

Little Romance Built Up by Proximity Found to Be Not Founded on Fact.

The little old woman who sat nearly opposite the girl at the long marble table was palsied. She almost spilled her coffee when she put it to her mouth. Her trembling fingers hardly could break her bread. It came near spoiling the little lunch the girl had ordered for herself to see the pitiful trembling of the little faded fingers, the constant shaking of the head under the old lace veil that half shaded the old withered face. The only reason it didn't was because of the strong young man who sat beside the little palsied woman quite close, so close that the little woman once or twice leaned against him shakily.

"It's her son, thank heaven!" thought the girl. "Thank heaven, she's got a son! Oh! Suppose I should go about all alone some day shaking like that!"

The little shaking woman finished her lunch before the girl did, perhaps because they had bought it quicker, sorry for her, seeing her shake so. She got up. The young man got up and stood by her

"Yes," the girl thought, congratulating herself. "It's her son. They look alike. I'm awfully glad she isn't alone, that poor little palsied woman. Something might happen to her."

Then the little palsied woman walked tremblingly to the desk and paid her check and the strong young man went and paid his, and when they got out the door one went one way and the other went the other, and he wasn't her son at all.

MONARCH WILLING TO OBLIGE

Episode That Proved Ruler Was Endowed with a Good Share of Common Sense.

Having purchased two pictures of a Parisian artist, King A—— of X—— honored the painter by a visit at a studio situated, among many others, on the fourth floor of an old house in the Latin quarter.

"Look here, young man! Do me a favor. Just carry up this washing to your friend!"

The artist was greatly embarrassed.

"Oh, your majesty!" he stammered; "what a terrible mistake! Why did you not reprove the porter? Why did you bring the bag up?"

"Because he asked me to," said the king with a laugh.

"But—"

"Oh, nonsense!" interrupted the king. "Don't say any more about it. Every one ought to be obliging; and, whoever one may happen to be, it would be very disobliging to refuse a favor to a fellow-creature, when one could so easily save him a journey up four flights of stairs!"

Interesting Relic.

Just before Charles Edward, the young pretender, came to England to attempt the recovery of the throne of his ancestors, he gave a ball in Paris to which his friends and partisans were invited. Among the many beautiful women present, Lady Mary Touchet, a young English lady, greatly attracted the prince's notice, and before the evening was over he cut out the "star" which decorated his breast and presented it to her. Lady Mary cherished a romantic regard for "Prince Charlie," and was one of his most devoted adherents. She died very suddenly in the pride of her youth and beauty. The "star" after her death became the property of her sister, who married Philip Thicknesse. This gentleman, who was a whig, did not care for the Jacobite relic, and gave the "star" and a picture of the prince to his nieces. Doubtless the pretender's "star" is now in the possession of some family who regard it as a valuable curiosity, and preserve it as such.

Protection for the Lion.

A strange petition has been received at the French colonial office from the colonists of French Uganda. It prays for the protection of the lion from the gun of the hunter, on the ground that the king of beasts is alone able to rid them of their enemies, the herbivorous animals, the deer, the elephant and the rhinoceros. It seems that hunters were rigorously restricted as to the number of these beasts which they could kill, although the license cost from £50 to £60. Consequently they have increased and multiplied to such an extent that the colonists are now calling upon the home authorities to protect the exterminating lion. Only La Fontaine could do justice to this situation.

Cause for Heavy Tread.

"Have you noticed," asked an observant woman, "how much more heavily women walk this year than ever before? I have learned the cause of it. The high heels are responsible for this extra noise. You see, the balance of the body is completely changed, especially for those people who have been wearing a comparatively low heel, and the result is that the entire weight, apparently, comes down 'plunk' on those high heels. It will certainly be a blessing when the low heel is once more in favor, for then our nerves will not be racked by the awful thumping as people wander on their way."

The Best Investment on Earth is the Earth Itself
Real Estate is a Real Investment

Real Estate is the safest investment that exists—it can't fail—it can't abscond—it can't make default—it can't float.

Real Estate in fact is not a risk, it is real and tangible and always has a definite value.

Nothing grows more surely nor to greater real value ultimately than growing real estate in suburban additions.

"Anyone can make money, few can save it!" Make yourself one of the few—don't wait till you are rich to begin, if you do you will never begin—buy a lot today on the weekly payment plan.

Don't wait for a large capitol to begin with. Invest your spare dollars in a lot—the increase in value of first one will help you buy a second one.

"Young man buy Real Estate,—especially in the outlaying suburbs,—your investments will make your old age comfortable."—RUSSEL SAGE.

"You cannot duplicate real estate—you can duplicate any other kind of security—Real Estate is the best investment for small savings"—EX-GOVERNOR FLOWER.

A prominent U. S. Senator said:—"Every man who has purchased and owns a home of his own, in which he lives is Already a Success. The only sure way to secure a home is to save a little money every week or month out of your income, judiciously invest such savings in your little suburban house site, then Stick, Dig and Save until the desired result is obtained."

BUILDING LOT SALE

Installment Plan at Cash Prices During Month of May

"Only one dollar a week on a 30 foot front lot, no cash advance payment! 50 thirty foot lots on York and Hanover streets, Gettysburg, a section building up rapidly and nicely, $5.50 to $6.00 per front foot, not one-tenth the price of a lot uptown, it will pay to buy now and hold for advances.

Save 15c a day out of the money spent uselessly, and buy a lot, later on build a home and stop paying rent.

Any man, any industrious boy, any economical girl with an income, can make the payments and own a lot of ground!"

The above is a copy of our advertisement away back in 1908—the prediction that "it would pay to buy now and hold for advances" has been more than realized—the lots offered then at $5.50 and $6.00 have since been resold by the then purchasers at $9.00 and $10 per front foot! In a number of instances the purchasers on installment plan did not even have the payments made in full, and were only paying 3 per cent. interest—

Since that time we have added a great many lots to our offers for sale and we are now offering

The following lots

930 feet front	Lincoln street—West	935 feet front	N. Stratton street
1095 feet front	Lincoln street—East	90 feet front	Water street
3346 feet front	Broadway street	914 feet front	York street
343 feet front	Carlisle street	454 feet front	Hanover street
1595 feet front	Carlisle street extended	1550 feet front	East Middle street
1000 feet front	Mummasburg street	180 feet front	Fourth street
400 feet front	Harrisburg road	1000 feet front	Fifth street

More Than Two and One-half Mile Frontage For Sale with Another Mile or More to be Added Shortly

The industrial development of the town, especially at the East end—the promise of unusual business activity in 1913—surely will make an increased demand for homes, and therefore for building lots. Now is the time to buy, before prices are advanced, an increase in demand will be followed by an increase in prices, in building lots as in all other commodities for sale—Hence buy now! today!

Installment Plan Prices Same as Cash Prices

Unusual features of our nearly $40,000 of deferred payment plan sales are—that by far the larger portion of the sales were made to parties looking for good investments, and comparatively small portion to young men and women out of their weekly earnings with a view to owning their own homes—also a large proportion of the houses erected on these lots were erected on lots bought from the original purchasers at a good advance in prices.

Only one dollar a week on a 30 foot front lot, no cash advance payment! No Taxes!
